Novelties in Neckwear As Seen Here.

The near-by spring season is already heralded by Collars and Cuffs are in the height of fashion. There are straight bands with hemstitching and exquisite French embroideries, some in floral, thers in conventional ideas. Also sets in white and color combined. One of he prettlest of these is an applique of palest blu n white India lawn. White and black effects are also displayed in both simple and elaborate patterns, though par-ticularly stylish ones are in black French knots on fine linen or lawn, edged with very narrow stitched

The new style of three tabs in front is shown in a very elegant stock of pale rose crepe de chine. The tabs are hordered with a dainty band apparently held in place with tiny pearl beads, and the stock is appropriately finished with sprays of lace applique in roses. The same effects are produced also in a blue crepe de chine stock. A novelty is a Persian stock of pink ribbon with ends to tie at the back of the neck. Over the front turns a deep cellar of pale cream silk ornamented with deep cream medallions on which are hand-embroidered in colors most exquisite clusters of roses and foliage. Another of the Persian novelties is a high stock ly embroidered in oriental designs and colorings. Quite a stylish stock is composed of narrow bands of pink with similar ones of white, put to-A dressy turn-over collar is of sheer white lawn with a very long outspreading tab, the whole rich-hand-embroidered in daintiest clusters of red ber ries and delicate green leaves. Artistically beautiful are the new Paris scarfs

A shower of roses style displays falling petals of rose and its foliage, and is bordered with a full ruffle about six inches deep thickly embroidered in tiny rosebuds, while on the edge are small France

Parisian spring ruffs are charming-very long, very fluffy, very styllsh. An elegant one, two yards and a quarter in length, is composed of white China silk crossed from the back of the neck to the extreme ends with luxuriant ruffles bordered with narrow white ribbon having on both edges the effect of beading run with daintiest black satin

The fichu style of ruff is one of the handsomest shown. The fichu proper extends to the waist and is of white taffeta covered with black Spanish lace. On the outer edge and adown the ends of point d'esprit, runs a full ruffle of this point provende with ribbon in exceedingly narrow black and white stripes. stripes.

A most beautiful ruff is of white liberty silk accordion plaited and finished with ruchings of the

New Feather Boas are in varied styles of beauty and elegance, light and effective for dressy occa-sions and evening wear.

Charming New Cottons As Seen Here.

If Cotton is King in the raw state, it is certainly queen in the beautiful materials that fashion enthrones for the spring and summer season.

Never before have there been such exquisite weaves, such artistic effects, such creations of loveliness as are now shown in cotton goods.

Laize Renaissance is one of the most fascinating of the cotton novelites. The ground has very beautiful lace effects and the designs are quite artistic. One picturesque pattern is a lovely lace-wrought texture embellished with sprays of lilles of the valley and large petals of the Easter lily, in which are clusters of the most exquisite roses and their foliage, in colorings so perfect and dainty as to resemble the most delicate hand painting.

Pointelle Graziella, one of the prettiest spring novelties, derives its name from tiny dots or points in satin effect, and not larger than might be made with a pen point, thick over the fabric, imparting an effective shimmer. The figures in color, also in black and white, are also unique.

Organdie Correaux is a new creation in organdy, having the effect of finest silk cross-barred with satin, and beautified with floral designs. One particularly nttractive pattern has branches of roses in hand-painted effects.

Mercerized Regence, to which, as its name implies, has been imparted the luster that makes the beauty of silk, is a pretty and popular fabric.

Embroidered Mohair Swisses are among the most elegant of the new spring dress goods. The em-broideries are very rich, and consist of both con-ventional motifs and flowers in profusion. Rose, azure and other delicate thits prevail in the tex-ture and the embroidery is mostly in black or white. white.

Mohair Swiss is especially desirable for seashore wear, as dampness does not affect the stylish dressing which is one of its chief charms, Robe patterns in French Mousseline are among the imported novelties. They are made of finest Egyptian cotton of long silken fiber, and are ex-ceedingly filmy and delicate. A beautiful cream pattern is sprinkled and festooned with roses. An-other is of ivory white with dull blues in the floral embellishments.

There are new Russian ducks, primrose batistes, dimities and lawns galore, all so pretty and varied that choice is not any easy matter, though there are fabrics and colors adapted to every style of

One very rich pattern shows on the front, rising one above another, a wealth of the quaint flowers of the Old Country, known as flags, that very much resemble some rare specimens of orchids. There are down the front two small box plaits on which is worked the same design in diminutive blossoms and foliage.

Another attractive pattern has an abundance of leaves in rich raised embroidery.

There are some conventional patterns; also different designs in black and white. But all are so very handsome that any one of the atyles will prove an elegant addition to a seasonable ward-

THE WORLD OF SOCIETY

MRS. ROOSEVELT RESUMES HER HOSPITALITIES TODAY.

The Pavlow-Des Planques Wedding Last Night-Dinners and Other Sociabilities-Personals.

Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain this after was anticipated, the most impressive as well as most picturesque spectacle of the winter. The beautiful young bride, Mile. Irene Des Planques, and the groom, M. Alexander Pavlow, bore themselves with great dignity throughout the lengthy ceremony, as did indeed each member of the bridal cortege. Before taking her place in the wedding procession the charming young Countess Cassini welcomed the guests (who had 10), being richly gowned in white panne velvet, and wearing many jewels. The ushers served in securing convenient places for the guests to witness the ceremony. They assembled in the hall, and the two drawing rooms was divided by the stretching of white ribbons, forming an aisle for the passing of the bridal party.

The new embassy was already fully furnished, but the draperles, pictures and bricabrac, owned by the new tenants, give the main floor a touch of oriental splender that main floor a touch of oriental splendor that is most effective. The portocochere entrance not being used last night, the hallway accommodated a great divan and accessories transforming the space into a spacious room.

The floral decorations were especially beautiful. A bank of lilies was erected across the first landing of the staircase, and the banisters were hidden under green vines, with clusters of l'iles tied on with bows of white tulle. White doves suspended from invisible wires seemed about to fly downstairs, these emblems of purity being also conspicuous in the decorations of the improvised and flower-decked chapel into which the banquet hall was converted for the ceremonies. Picasing effects in flowers were lavishly seen in each room, a fair quantity of them having been sent the bride by her Washington acquaintances. The religious r'tes were performed by Bishop Tikhon and four priests of the Greek Church, whose charting was the musical accompaniment. After the ceremusical accompaniment. After the ceremony the bride and groom led the way to the library, a spacious apartment at the southwest corner of the house, where the supper table was spread, laden with substantial dishes as well as sweets and ices. Almost the entire diplomatic corps was present, the only absentees being detained by tilpess by illness. The prevailing epidemic of bad colds was also a deterring cause for several senators, although a night session of the upper house was the immediate reason for most. PAY FRATERNAL VISIT. Department Commander, G. A. R., and

Party at Hagerstown. Department Commander Kimball, accompanied by a number of members of his staff and other veterans of the Department of Potomac, went to Hagerstown, Md., yesterday to pay a fraternal visit to the department encampment of Maryland, in session in that city. The encampment held its sessions in Junior Hall, the department commander, John W. Worth of Baltimore, presiding. The veterans from the Department of Potomac were received with honors by the Maryland encampment, and very little business was transacted during the afternoon, most of the time being taken up with addresses of welcome and responses. The return trip from Hagerstown was commenced at 4:50, and the city was reached about 10 o'clock. The trip to the national encampment at San Francisco was discussed, and the Department of Maryland will probably join with the Department of Potomac in engaging a special train for the

he streets throughout the city last night and the merry laughter and fingle of sleigh bells continued far into the night. Pennsylvania avenue between the peace monument and the Treasury Department seemed to be the Mecca for the merry makers, and that wide avenue was crowded with sleighs of all descriptions. Major Sylvester provided a detail of mounted policemen for vided a detail of mounted policemen for the purpose of regulating the speed and preventing possible accidents. Only one arrest was recorded and that was a man who gave his name as J. H. Jackson, who was arrested by Mounted Policeman Lipscomb, for driving his steed at an excessive speed. He deposited $5 collateral at the first precinct police station, and it was forfeited by his non-appearance at the Police Court this morning. The law prohibits a speed of more than eight miles an hour.

District Made Defendant. eorge E. Hamilton and Michael J. Col-

instituted proceedings in equity for injur tion against the District of Columbia. The court is asked to enjoin the District from setting up any claim to the property mentioned, under certain alleged sales for default in the payment of taxes. The complainants aver that all taxes upon the premises have been paid since 1889, but that upon the records are certain assess-ments against a former owner, who died November 4, 1860. The mere fact that the charges remained upon the records, it is contended, constituted no objection to or cloud upon the title to the property when the complainants bought.

Presentation of Jewels.

At the last regular meeting of Mithras Lodge of Perfection, Scottish Rite Masonry, Francis J. Woodman conferred the fourteenth degree on a class of four candidates. Dr. E. George Lind presented to W. L. Boyden, past venerable master of Mithras Lodge, a thirty-third degree jewel, and Mr. Boyden presented to Dr. E. F. Frost, the musical director of the lodge, a thirty-second degree jewel.

niversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Truett was marked by a large reception held at their home, 1601 31st street. They were assisted by their daughters, Miss Lillie E. Truett and Miss Emma W. Tru-ett. Mrs. Truett wore the gown in which she was married twenty-five years ago. Steel blue slik, point-lace trimmings, even the gloves then worn. Miss Lillie Pruett was in a pink silk mousseline. Miss Emma W. Truett worn a blue slik mousseline. Miss Evaline Reichman, Miss Nannie May Almond of Lynchburg, Va., and Miss Louise Grunwell of Washington assisted in the entertainment of the guests. The floral decorations of the parlor were in pink and white roses, and of the reception hall and dining room were in red roses, which together with palms, ferns, &c., made a brilliant scene in the spacious and beautiful rooms. Refreshments were served and greatly enjoyed, the original bride's cake being reproduced. Notwithstanding the invitation cards had the words "no presents" engraved upon them the happy couple were overruled in this matter by a number of their friends insisting upon presenting them with a silver token of their esteem.
